Memory of Foggintor School.

Oh it was a lovely school, lovely and warm, they had a good water supply there, and it was all central heated, the school and the house, and it was quite nice, because there was only two classrooms there, Mr Stoye was the schoolmaster, very nice man he was as well, and his wife used to take infants when they started first and when you got to a certain age of course you went in with the Headmaster, and of course I was there until I was 14, I started when I was 5 and there until I was 14 and then of course you left school, there was no question of going anywhere else.
