

Margaret Norrish

Bedroom furniture during the 1930s.

When you went up the stairs you were in one of the bedrooms, it wasn't blocked off in no way, and there was a hole in the wall as you went up the stairs, well I suppose its kind of a wardrobe or something and Auntie used to hang things up in there. That one looked out over at the back, the first bedroom and the other one looked out over - in they days you'd call it the yard.

So what furniture was in that first bedroom?

Only just the bed, a double bed, iron bed and a chest of drawers.